HEBANY TAX MANAGEMENT

Is an Emirati management consulting firm, based in Dubai, with 4 main capabilities: Tax, Finance, Creating companies, Global reach & Migration Services.

Our advisory and consulting services focus on these branches, providing customized solutions to customers. For some time, the rules concerning the Value Added Tax (VAT) implementation in the United Arab Emirates (UAE) and further across the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) members have been published. We expose here how these updates will impact the business practice in the UAE and what to learn from VAT execution across the world. Regarding the VAT, all concerned parties will get to know each other for the first time.

The risk of negatively affecting business is present, but so are the chances of using this new information exchange process to boost competitiveness and trust across the GCC.

Long-Term Business Vision

Once a tax form is introduced, it is extremely unlikely that it will ever be removed. Across many countries that have levied VAT for several years, temporary taxes that were raised based on an extraordinary circumstance are still being collected. Businesses will have to shift gears and adapt for a new long-term reality. Once the collection infrastructure is in place, governments are unlikely to de-invest this infrastructure and do without a source of income. To cater to this situation, businesses have to have a long-term business strategy in place that allows them to keep a competitive edge.

Every law has a loophole

Practice is much more complex than the law specifies. Our team has a wide knowledge to advise about the best practices for different countries and different kind of businesses as some of them would not fit into this type of tax management but most of them have green light, just have not tried yet.
